Timex uses technology introduced to the industry in its quest to bring practical technology to the sports industry. The Sleek collection is the culmination of nearly two decades of technological and aesthetic refinement to the Ironman line of watches. With a combination of advanced features, new and easier to read displays with oversize digits and bold, aerodynamic designs, the Sleek line stands out as the evolutionary leader among performance sport wrist instruments.

The Timex advanced watch has a selection of integrated polyurethane and infinitely adjustable Fast Wrap straps. The Ironman Triathlon is a favourite of athletes for recording lap times. To time how long it takes to run a leg of a marathon, swim a length of a pool, or bike to the next telephone pole, by recording a "lap." The chronograph continues to run, allowing the mark and instant view of up to 50 laps that can be reviewed at the end of each exercise session.
